Iran

The swearing-in ceremony of newly arrived inspection trainees held

The Vice President of the General Inspection Organization: Improving affairs and preventing redundant processes will bring public satisfaction. According to the public relations report of the General Inspection Organization, the swearing-in ceremony of the new inspection trainees was held in the presence of Judge Rahamanian, the Vice President of GIO.

At the beginning of this ceremony Judge Rahamanian addressed the newly arrived trainees by honoring Labor Week and Teacher's Day: You are at the beginning of an important and sensitive path, and from now on, commit yourself to learning and gaining more knowledge.

He said: One of your most important approaches in this dangerous position is to see what the people's problems are and how to solve the knot of the people's problems through supervisory action.

This official stated that it is a red line to cause dissatisfaction and damage to public trust and clarified: In performing the duties and tasks assigned, go for important and great works that attract the trust of the society and public satisfaction. Referring to the importance of the fight against corruption in gaining public trust, the Vice President of the GIO stated: Part of the people's complaints is about corruption. Of course, the meaning of corruption is not only economic corruption. Rather, any illegal act that harms people's trust is a type of corruption. This corruption can be administrative, political, cultural, social and economic and even a simple administrative corruption.

Referring to the importance of fighting corruption in realizing the slogan of the year, Rahamanian said: All managers and elements of the Islamic Republic of Iran are required to implement and realize the slogan of the year. In this regard, part of the task of our inspectors is to identify the sources of corruption, bottlenecks of corruption, enumerate the causes of weakness in productivity, non-compliance with laws and regulations related to production and employment, lack of work and laxity in some departments, etc. He pointed out: In order to realize the slogan of the year, it is necessary to have things such as comprehensive and complete and forward-looking planning in economic and executive institutions, support for the private sector, full compliance with economic laws and regulations, avoiding marginalization, strengthening the spirit of work and production, avoiding Consumerism, preventing frequent changes in laws and guidelines and creating legal stability, mandatory pricing, etc. should be taken into consideration. The Vice President of GIO emphasized the comprehensive fight against corruption and said: Do not consider corruption limited to some issues such as economic, administrative corruption, etc. Appointing an incompetent manager in a managerial position and even hiring and recruiting an employee outside the rules and regulations can be a corruption and we must be the eyes of the Islamic system in these cases.

Stating that one of the people's complaints is the issue of long and sometimes pointless bureaucracies, this judicial official said: A person who refers to an organization should not be involved in administrative letters and complex administrative bureaucracy for weeks and months and inevitably be forced to pay bribes in order to achieve his request. . Preventing these redundant processes and correcting matters can provide public satisfaction. Rahamanian continued with the description that there is no better reputation than the correct and complete implementation of the law, and there is no worse reputation than violating regulations: If we want to understand the commitment to the implementation of the law, we must pay attention to the manner and method of the Supreme Leader Even in the most difficult periods of the system, they have emphasized on the implementation of the law.

In his advices to new inspection trainees, he stated: If you want to be a good inspector, you must master the rules and regulations of the organization under inspection before any supervisory action. You must know the legal capacities of that institution well and be aware of the structure, function and output of that institution so that in the end you can comment that the laws have been implemented correctly or that there is a need to amend or introduce a new law and if it has not been implemented correctly, the reason for that. what has been This official continued: Be consultative, especially with colleagues and experts. He stated: One of the serious weaknesses of the administrative system and executive bodies is the lack of complete respect of the managers and employees to the laws and regulations and mandatory instructions and commitment to their implementation, so this issue has been taken into consideration in the judicial reform document and is part of one of them. It is one of the missions of the National Inspection Organization.

In another recommendation to the new trainees, Vice President of GIO said: seek to find the root and identify the causes of corruption and try to eliminate corruption from the roots. This view means identifying corruption bottlenecks, promoting transparency and monitoring the realization of e-government goals in a serious manner in the inspection organization, and you should put these issues at the top of your work priorities. In the final part of his speech, he ordered the trainees to strengthen their relationship with Allah and said: strengthen your relationship with the Creator as much as you can. Don't be arrogant in your work and know that the devil lurks in a proud and arrogant person. Put your trust in God in your work and consider sincerity in your work to bring Allah's pleasure. It should be mentioned that at the end of this meeting, the swearing-in ceremony of the new trainees was held in the presence of the Holy Quran.

Gaza report dispatched worldwide by Türkiye's Ombudsman Institution

Aykut Yilmaz

As Israel's deadly offensive on the Gaza Strip enters its sixth month, an official report from Türkiye on the situation in the Palestinian enclave has been dispatched worldwide, aiming to serve as evidence in the prosecution of those responsible for "massacre, war crimes, and genocide," according to the country's chief ombudsman. The document, titled Gaza: A Special Report on the Catastrophe of Humanity, was prepared by Türkiye's Ombudsman Institution and introduced at Turkish parliament last week. It has now been sent to other legislatures, as well as international institutions and organizations including the UN Security Council, European Parliament, Council of Europe, Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), and the International Criminal Court (ICC). Speaking to Anadolu, Chief Ombudsman Seref Malkoc underlined the importance of the report documenting the "genocide" that Israel has waged in Gaza since Oct. 7, adding that copies had been distributed to the representatives of nearly 200 countries at the Antalya Diplomacy Forum (ADF) on March 1-3. "I believe that this report will be used as evidence in courts where those responsible for the massacre, war crimes, and genocide in Gaza will be tried," Malkoc said.

'World's largest child cemetery'

Since the report was made public, ambassadors from many countries have asked for appointments to discuss its contents, Malkoc noted. "South Africa's ambassador said they would forward the report to their president to be sent to the International Court of Justice (ICJ). "In addition, a team headed by our ombudsman Fatma Benli Yalcin sent the report electronically to all human rights defenders, ombuds, human rights commissions in countries' parliaments, and judgment institutions worldwide. "Since Oct. 7, Gaza has turned into the world's largest children's cemetery," the official lamented. There is no other example in the world of the massacre unfolding in Gaza, he said, adding: "They dropped bombs on Gaza three times more powerful than the atomic bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki."

"Nearly 70,000 tons of bombs," he stressed.

Criticizing the US and many European nations for maintaining their support for Israel, Malkoc also pointed out that millions around the world "who have a conscience and value human dignity are taking to the streets" to protest Israel's onslaught. With the events in Gaza, the international system set up by Europe and the US after World War II has collapsed, along with all their theories and jurisprudence on human rights, he asserted. Arguing that the world needs a new breath of fresh air on human rights thinking, Malkoc said: "Our president's (Recep Tayyip Erdogan) statement that, 'the world is bigger than five,' and the fact that it is gaining attention all over the world is the most concrete indicator of this."

'Being a woman in Gaza'

Calling attention to the suffering of women and children in Gaza since Oct. 7, Ombudswoman Yalcin also underlined that Israel has been committing genocide in Gaza over the past five months. Speaking to Anadolu, she noted that according to the UN Population Fund, pregnant women face the risk of miscarriage at rates of up to 300% as they have no access to hospital care. Yalcin pointed out that the 50,000 women who were pregnant in Gaza on Oct. 7 could not "give birth in a healthy way" amid the lack of food and clean water, with many among the 2 million displaced since the offensive began.

The official further said: "That is why there are so many child deaths. There are even many reports of women going through c-sections without anesthesia," said the official. "Things are getting much worse for women in Gaza," she warned. "This March 8, we need to proclaim this to the whole world." Yalcin emphasized that the number of women killed in Gaza has exceeded 7,500 and urged women's organizations around the world to raise their voices on International Women's Day to say: "Stop the massacre of women and children in Gaza." "We have prepared a brochure on what being a woman is like in Gaza and we will present it at the Commission on the Status of Women to be held at the UN," she said, adding that the Turkish parliament's Committee on Equal Opportunity for Women and Men would also take part in this presentation.

Stating that women and children have been targeted and killed by Israeli snipers in Gaza, she said the Ombudsman Institution's report document this and other aspects of the situation in the besieged territory. Yalcin also underlined that what is happening in Gaza is the result of Israel's impunity. "If the world does not oppose this with a louder voice, if Palestine is not recognized as an independent state in the UN, if an immediate cease-fire is not achieved, all the rights violations taking place in the world will become crimes in which governments worldwide are complicit," she warned. She said only "existing cases" have been used in the report to document the genocide.

"On March 8, everyone who thinks about Gaza should ask themselves the question, 'What would I do if I were the mother of that child?' Israel has waged a deadly military offensive on the Gaza Strip since an Oct. 7, 2023 Hamas attack which Tel Aviv said killed nearly 1,200 people. More than 30,700 Palestinians have since been killed and over 72,000 others injured amid mass destruction and shortages of necessities. Israel has also imposed a crippling blockade on the Gaza Strip, leaving its population, particularly residents of northern Gaza, on the verge of starvation."
